

Documenting Social Sustainability in the Norwegian Wild Catch fisheries

By: Bjørg Nøstvold

E-mail: bjorg.nostvold@nofima.no

Phone: +47 776 29041

Aim

Provide a document, satisfying customer requirements, detailing how social sustainability is safeguarded throughout the wild capture seafood value chain.

Why?

The project

- Financed by The Norwegian Seafood research fund
- On initiative of Fiskebåt og Norges Fiskarlag (Vessels owners and fishermen organisations)
- Reserach institutions:
Nofima – Bjørg Nøstvold og Pirjo Honkanen
FaFo – Anne Mette Ødegård
University of Stirling – James A. Young
- Finished by Feb. 2019

- Wikimedia Commons - By U.S. Coast Guard

Photo: Nofima

Standarder for sosial bærekraft

Why not certify?

1. Value of self-declaration?

Photo: Nofima

Challenging!

1. Value of self.declaration
2. Cost - Fleet size and structure

Photo: Nofima

Photo: Nofima

Challenging!

1. Value of self.declaration
2. Fleet size and structure
3. Average age of fishermen (closing in on 50 years)

Challenging!

1. Value of self- declaration
2. Fleet size and structure
3. Average age of fishermen (closing in on 50 years)
4. Traditional cod toung cutters

Photo: Nofima

How?

Photo: Nofima

How

1. Evaluate the status of social sustainability
2. Document how Norwegian authorities control, act and react when laws are infringed
3. Conduct a risk evaluation
4. Identify most important indicators for social sustainability and validate these with Norwegian labour unions, fleet, industry and customers
5. Provide a document describing Norwegian social sustainability including enforcement and consequences of noncompliance.

Photo: Nofima

How

1. Evaluate the status of social sustainability
2. Document how Norwegian authorities control, act and react when laws are infringed
3. Conduct a risk evaluation
4. Identify most important indicators for social sustainability and validate these with Norwegian labour unions, fleet, industry and customers
5. Provide a document describing Norwegian social sustainability including enforcement and consequences of noncompliance.

Photo: Nofima

Thank you for your attention

www.nofima.no

